INTRODUCTION

MISSION STATEMENT:

To promote the sport of Judo through recognition of proficiency, achievement, contribution and excellence by members with an equitable and well defined grading system.

PRINCIPLES OF JUDO:

- Seiryoku Zenyo (maximum efficiency with minimum effort)
- Jita Kyoei (mutual welfare and benefit)

PRINCIPLES OF GRADING

Grades in judo are attributed with regard to elaborate principles by Master Jigoro Kano, the founder of Kodokan Judo, and as stipulated in the regulations of the International Judo Federation (IJF).

These grades, as in all the "budo", must show a certain technical progress, a larger understanding of the discipline and a certain "elevation" of the individual who is promoted. This is the shin-ghi-tai in its entirety.

SHIN:	moral and intellectual value
GHI:	technical value
TAI:	corporal value

Each period of the Shin Ghi Tai principle must be accomplished during the correct period of the practitioner's life in order to reach higher dan ranks.

The Tai period corresponds to the physically austere. The introduction to and practice (shugyo) of the global learning of judo must be done in the early years of the judoka's life. This learning must be expressed through randori and shiai, for this period is the harshest. In other words, the tai period is the period when the training is physically at its hardest. This period typically is when the judoka is a teenager or a young adult.

The Ghi period concerns the mastery of mechanical skills, the quality of the strategies and the variety of the practical knowledge of judo. It shall occur when the judoka already has sufficient judo experience to allow him to express a logical, efficient and fluid Judo in complete accordance of the statement of Jigoro Kano's maxim: Seiryoku Zenyo - maximum efficiency with minimum effort.

The Shin period, which concerns the moral and intellectual aspect, must reflect Master Kano's second maxim: Jita Kyoei - mutual prosperity and benefit. The Yudansha has proven his fighting skills, and thus shares his technical ability with his judo community.

Some elements are obviously more tangible, more measurable than others. This is why the role of the "sensei" is of capital importance. At the time of the candidate's application, no one else is better placed to judge these elements.

PURPOSE OF THE NATIONAL GRADING SYLLABUS

This Grading Syllabus sets forth the required standards and other criteria necessary for all dan examinations and promotions in keeping with Judo Canada's mission statement.

The rules as set forth in this syllabus are the only rules recognized in Canada.
